AVIATOR GRAY REACHES THIS CITY TODAY

COMPLETES CROSS COUNTRY FLIGHT FROM ANCIENT CITY

STARTS FROM ST. AUGUSTINE AT 8:20 O'CLOCK, STOPS AT ORMOND AND ARRIVES HERE AT NOON.

Aviator George Gray, who has been waiting for some time in St. Augustine for a favorable opportunity to continue his cross country flight to Daytona, arrived here at noon today, alighting on the beach in front of the Hotel Clarendon.

Gray started his trip from St. Augustine at 8:20 o'clock this morning and alighted on the beach at Ormond at 9:50 o'clock, starting from Ormond again at about 11:30 and alighting at the Clarendon at 12 o'clock.

He made the trip without accident or unusual incident, making only the one stop at Ormond. He was accompanied on the trip by one of his mechanics.

This is the second leg of the flight Gray is to make down the East Coast from Jacksonville to Palm Beach, he having made the first part of the trip from Jacksonville to St. Augustine nearly three weeks ago.

The aviator was unacquainted with the beach or landing places in Daytona and maneuvered for some time over the beach and Clarendon hotel before deciding on a place to alight, this taking some time.

Mr. Gray will remain here for several days and at this time is undecided whether to continue the flight on down the coast. It is possible an aeroplane race between Mr. Gray and Miss Law may be arranged for some time the last part of this week.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH IN CHICAGO HOTEL FIRE TODAY

THREE MEN SUFFOCATED IN BEDS AND ONE WOMAN TAKES TOO MUCH TIME TO PUT ON HER CLOTHES.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30 — The Iowa hotel on North Clark street was destroyed by fire early this morning. One woman and three men were burned to death. Many guests were cut off from the fire escapes and had narrow escapes from death.

The three men were suffocated in their beds. The woman took time to dress and waited too long before attempting to escape.

F. L. Reed, who is stopping at the City hotel, says Daytona for his. Reed says that he has had a better business here than ever before and wishes he could make Daytona every day.

BATTLE AT JAUREZ IS IMMINENT

BODY OF MEXICANS, DOUBLE THAT OF GARRISON, IS NEAR

REBELS CAPTURE ANOTHER TOWN AND THREATEN TO BURN IT UNLESS RANSOM OF $1,000 IS PAID.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 30—It is reported today that a large body of Mexicans has arrived at Guzman and that a battle at the gateway to Mexico is imminent. The attacking party under General Salazar numbers 1,000 men, double that of the garrison of Jaurez.

Mexican revolutionists had a skirmish with the Texas rangers when they crossed the Fabens river into Texas, and two of the Mexicans were killed.

Another Town Is Seized—

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 30—Rebels today seized the town of Encalón, in the state of Chihuahua, and are now threatening to burn the town unless $1,000 ransom is raised and paid over.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Bingham & Maley company's undertaking parlors over the remains of Russell M. Kell of Evansville, Ind., who died at Seabreeze Tuesday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. A. L. Abercrombie, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city and the interment was made at Pinewood cemetery, Daytona Beach.

The young man came here in the last stages of consumption a few weeks ago, accompanied by his brother, and continued to fail until the end came, Tuesday afternoon.

NEBRASKAN WILL REMAIN IN MIAMI UNTIL LAST OF FEBRUARY AND THEN GO TO THE CAPITAL TO INAUGURATION.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 30—After a conference late last night between William Jennings Bryan and other prominent democratic leaders, an announcement was made that Mr. Bryan has given positive assurance that he will accept the portfolio of secretary of state in the cabinet of President Wilson.

Henry Alexander of Trenton, N. J., a personal friend to the president-elect, left for Trenton this morning, and it is believed he bears with him Mr. Bryan's acceptance to Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Bryan will remain at his winter home here until the end of February, when he will go to Washington to attend the inauguration ceremonies.

The steamer Swan started on her return trip last night.

WOULDN'T PAY AUTO LICENSE; FIRST ARREST

TESTED BEFORE JUSTICE AND WILL BE TAKEN TO DE LAND

MAN CLAIMS HE HAD BEEN IN THE STATE BUT A SHORT TIME AND INTENDS TO GO ON TO TAMPA.

The first arrest in Volusia county for refusal to pay automobile license occurred this morning when C. C. Boynton was arrested at the instance of License Collector M. L. Crews. Mr. Boynton was given a preliminary before Justice M. H. Zuber and bound over for trial before the criminal court under bond of $20, which he deposited in cash.

Mr. Boynton claims that he had been in the state only a short time and intends to leave here for Tampa very shortly. Justice Zuber could not see that the excuse was sufficient justification and decided that Mr. Boynton had violated the law.

Aviator Gray followed the inland waterway on his flight from St. Augustine here today.

STRANGER IS CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

HAS HEARING TODAY BEFORE ZUBER AND IS BOUND OVER

WOMAN SAYS MAN "BORROWED" WATCH AND RING ON CLYDE LINE BOAT AND FAILED TO RETURN THEM.

Charged with embezzlement, Will Evans, a white stranger, was arrested this morning and bound over by Justice Zuber to the criminal court under bond of $300, which he failed to provide. Evans is now in the city jail awaiting the arrival of Sheriff Smith.

Evans was arrested on complaint of Miss Nettie E. Schuyler, who alleges that he took her watch presumably to have it regulated and about the same time borrowed her ring, both of which he failed to return. The jewelry is said to have been "borrowed" on a Clyde line boat enroute from New York to Jacksonville, and after the arrival at Jacksonville Evans disappeared. Miss Schuyler came to Daytona and saw Evans on the street and demanded the return of her property. He gave several excuses, saying first it had been stolen. It was later ascertained that he had pawned the jewelry with a Daytona Beach boarding house.

Announcement is made that the United States civil service commission will hold an examination in Daytona February 8, for the positions of clerk and city carrier in the Daytona postoffice. All applications for the examination must be filed with district secretary at his office in Atlanta not later than the close of business, February 1. Particulars of the examination may be obtained of the postmaster.

Reply Not Satisfactory—

LONDON, Jan. 30 — Turkey's reply to the powers is not satisfactory to the Balkan allies, M. Danef, the Bulgarian leader among the envoys, declared today no more peace negotiations will take place until Turkey unconditionally abandons Adrianople and the islands in the Aegean sea. The first shot fired in a renewal of hostilities will entail further demands, declared Danef.

NEGRO OVERCOME BY GAS WHILE WORKING IN A DITCH

DRAUGED FROM DITCH AND THE

PROMPT WORK BY PHYSICIAN

RESULTS IN HIS LIFE BEING

SAVED.

A negro by the name of Green in the employ of the Daytona Public Service company was overcome by gas Wednesday afternoon, shortly after 4 o'clock, while making a connection in the gas pipes at the rear of one of the buildings on Beach street, between Ivy Lane and Magnolia avenue. The man was dragged from the ditch in which he was at work and a physician summoned and he was quickly resuscitated. He remained in a dazed condition for a time, but was soon able to walk from the place. The man was working close over the joint and did not realize that he was inhaling an overdose of gas and only prompt action on the part of those at hand saved his life.

A pleasant violin recital was given Wednesday evening by Prof.

F. E. Sheppard and his pupils in the professor's music room at his residence on South Palmetto avenue and was greatly enjoyed by relatives of the young people taking part and a number of invited friends.

A BIG GOLD BRICK

The Trap That Jernegan Baited With Salt Sea Water.

SCHEME OF A CLEVER ROGUE

The Smooth Swindler and His Accomplice Showed How Easily They Could Extract Gold From the Ocean—Fleeced Their Duples and Then Decamped.

Various inventors have been working for years on the theory that there is plenty of gold in sea water if only some process of extraction could be developed.

Some years ago the Rev. Prescott J. Jernegan was the salt water wizard of the hour. From the day his bubble burst and he left for Europe nobody seems to know what has become of him. Jernegan, who posed as a clergyman, and C. E. Fisher, once a floor walker in a New York department store and before that a diver, got together in the fall of 1896 and for a whole year carefully considered the problem of extracting gold from salt water. It is true, their whole field of thought compassed the use of salt water as an accessory only, the real material from which the gold was to be extracted being the American people.

Very artistically Jernegan, to whom was left the matter of publicity, permitted some vague rumors to leak out. "A leading clergyman had a marvelous money making device. The world was soon to be stunned by a fact that would make the possessor of the original secret so rich that all the multimillionaires would be paupers in comparison." When they had stirred up public curiosity Jernegan and Fisher went to New England and there set up some mysterious machinery.

On Narragansett bay was an old half dismantled wharf, and at the sea end of this the two erected a cheap frame shanty about 8 by 10 in size, with a square hole cut through the floor and looking directly down into about fifteen feet of water. An electric wire from a small battery was run along the piling of the wharf and attached to a mysterious box, with heavy iron clamps and holes all through to permit of free passage of the water back and forth.

Finally the great secret was divulged. These two men had discovered a way of taking all the gold they wanted from the salt water at a cost so trifling that it was ridiculous to mention. Two wealthy persons, one a Providence jeweler and the other a New York florist, were approached by Jernegan with what seemed to be such a trustful and childlike proposal that they both embraced it eagerly. It was that, all his apparatus being ready for experiment, they would come to the shanty on the wharf prepared to go through a night's vigil and witness the result, accompanied by any scientific friends they cared to bring along.

The idea, as outlined by Jernegan was to send a current into a pan of mercury held within the box, the receptacle then being sent to the bottom of the sea and drawn up after several hours, when it would be found that the mercury had absorbed gold from the ocean.

When the night of the experiment came the box was prepared in the shanty, two chemists, friends of the capitalists, bringing their own mercury with them. The box was lowered to the bottom, and then the party of five began their wait. Soon after daylight Jernegan announced that it was time to draw the box up again. This was done, and the whole party eagerly set to work to find out whether any gold had been received. When the chemists announced that gold to the value of $14 was found mixed with the quicksilver all were stunned by the discovery and realized at once the vast possibilities in more extensive operations, the original experiment having been practically made with a toy apparatus.

The story spread like wildfire, and the modest Jernegan was prevailed upon to organize a company. Stock was sold, and after getting possession of thousands of dollars the promoter sailed away to Europe. The success of the great experiment was explained afterward. Fisher, the diver, had gone out from the shore in his diving suit, opened the box and, taking out the mercury that had been brought by the chemists, substituted a vial of his own that had been strongly impregnated with gold.

Both before and since the Jernegan fraud many attempts have been made to extract gold from salt water, some of them fraudulent, some genuine and based on scientific grounds that have from time to time appealed even to deep students. But all so far have failed dismally. Though traces of gold are to be found in salt water, commercial application is practically impossible.—New York Press.

NEW TALES THAT ARE TOLD

A Business Man's Queer Visitor.

George Fitch, the humorist, who is editing a paper in Peoria, Ill., tells a true story about Peoria that is interesting in view of the recent boom in land values throughout the country.

According to Fitch, a certain man named W. S. D. once upon a time took some Illinois land on a bad debt. He never visited his property, and after he had paid taxes on it for several years he had an offer for it which he accepted on the spot. The deeds were scarcely signed when he found that a city, Peoria, was growing up on that land. He was naturally annoyed, but

"WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU?" ASKED THE BUSINESS MAN.

several years later his annoyance was tinged with amusement. A stranger came into his office one day.

"What can I do for you?" asked the business man affably.

"Are you W. S. D.?"

"Yes, sir."

The man sat down and continued:

"Did you own the site of the city of Peoria?"

"Yes."

"Did you sell it for $600?"

"I did."

The stranger looked at him fully a minute. He appeared to be about to speak, but he said nothing. He got up, looked W. S. D. over again from head to foot and then tipped softly out of the room.—Country Gentleman.

FABLE FOR BENEFIT OF ADVERTISERS.

Simeon Ford Points a Moral

With the Tale of a Goose.

Simeon Ford, the noted humorist, said in praise of newspaper advertising at a banquet in New York:

"There is a table that all advertisers should have by heart. It runs like this:

"As a shopkeeper dozed, his head on the dusty counter of his shop, the gray cobwebs across his door were rent apart, and a goose entered.

"The shopkeeper rose with a glad smile. He thought he had a customer, but when he saw the goose he muttered an oath.

"What do you want here?" he said. "This is no place for geese."

"Isn't it?" said the goose. "Quack-quack!" And it regarded the shopkeeper derisively, then went on:

"I've come, my dear sir, because I saw your advertisement on the fence that incloses your barnyard. I knew that you must be a goose or else a donkey, because otherwise you would place your advertisement in a newspaper, where it would be read by human beings, and not upon an isolated fence, where it is only read by donkeys and geese and other barnyard denizens. So, being lonely today, I thought I'd make you a fraternal call. A couple of donks will probably drop in later."

Wild Oats and Porridge. Professor Zephaniah Hopper, hale and vigorous at eighty-eight, said at the Philadelphia high school:

"My advice to the young is that they sow no wild oats. Wild oats in youth means an old age sad and decrepit. And yet the way some people talk you'd think that wild oats were as essential a part of youth as domesticated oats are of Scotland."

Professor Hopper smiled and added: "A friend of mine in Scotland said to a boy:

"What do you have for breakfast hereabouts?"

"Porridge," was the answer.

"And for dinner?"

"Porridge."

"And for supper?"

"Porridge."

"Goodness!" said my friend. "Porridge every day for every meal! Do you never have anything else?"

"What else would you have?" said the boy.—Washington Star.

BOUNDARY LINE MARKS.

Those Between Hanover and Holland on the Rhine Are Unique.

Many of the international boundary marks display a sentimental as well as a practical character. The famous "star of Farewell," which marks the line between Russia and Siberia, has been celebrated in song and story. This boundary mark stands between Ekaterinburg, in Russia, and Tumen, in Siberia. It stands on the main road along which thousands of exiles have passed. It is an obelisk of brick six feet in height. On the west side it bears in Russian characters the word "Europe," and on the east side the word "Asia."

The boundary marks along our northern frontier, separating us from Canada, are of a most practical sort. For many hundreds of miles the St. Lawrence river and the great lakes form the natural boundaries, but there is a vast stretch of prairie land beyond with no natural demarcation. The boundary marks here are pillars of iron and wood placed at intervals of one mile. They have been alternately supplied by the two governments and may be seen from the Lake of the Woods to the Red river valley. Beyond that the marks are mounds of earth and cairns of stone.

The strangest of European frontier lines is that marking the boundary between Hanover and Holland, where it crosses the Rhine. A row of pontoon lines across the river, chained bow and stern, inasmuch as the dividing line runs through from stem to stern, the eastern halves of the boats are painted in German colors, the western in Dutch. The effect is most striking.

Austria has a frontier line of about 3,800 miles, of which 2,900 is land. Every mile of this must be guarded against the encroachments of Austria's neighbors. Germany is in a similar situation, since her land frontiers bordering upon Russia, Austria, Switzerland, France, Holland and Belgium are 2,225 miles in extent, and by far the larger portion is not protected by mountains, rivers or any other natural boundaries. The German frontier, however, is only 744 miles in extent.—Harpers.

DRESS OF MALTESE WOMEN.

Silk Hooded Cloaks Hide Face and Form From the Curious.

The dress of the Maltese is very singular, and that of the women striking in the extreme. When abroad they are all arrayed in black. They put on over their other dress a robe or loose skirt of that color, brought high on the bosom, and in place of bonnets their heads are covered with black silk mantles which invests their shoulders and descends halfway behind.

The part which covers the head is furnished with a piece of whalebone inserted in the hem, which keeps it in position and prevents the silk from dropping over the eyes. One hand, placed inside, is always necessary to hold together the sides of the scarf in front, and the other hand is often hid under its folds, only a forefinger being suffered to appear through the opening left for the purpose. Of course, under such maillots little can be seen of the beauty of form or feature if a Maltese nymph happens to possess them. The eyes and a moving, tall black figure are all that can be distinguished.

But sometimes the fair one deems to exhibit her face to a curious gazer in place of engrossing herself the privilege of seeing, and features good humor, rather pleasing than handsome and irradiated by a pair of fine, sparkling eyes, are displayed to the beholder. The complexion is a dark olive, partaking a little of a sort of mulatto tinge.

The mantle is obviously borrowed, or rather it has descended from a distant age and people. It answers to the veil of eastern ladies.

Such figures, thousands of whom are abroad on the Sabbath, give the streets a funeral look. It seems as if all Malta had gone into mourning.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Scott's Narrow Escape.

The world had a narrow escape of never having known a Sir Walter Scott when tiny babe he was left in charge of a maid, but the girl's heart was in Edinburgh, whether she wanted to go to rejoin her lover. She was, however, compelled to stay and look after the infant at Sandy Knowe. The girl regarded her charge as an obstacle to be removed and afterward confessed that she carried young Scott up to the crags (under a strong temptation of the devil, as she expressed it), fully intending to cut his throat with her scissors and bury him under the moss.

Classifying Him.

"Brother Hardcastle, can't you make your contribution for the education of the heathen a little larger than usual this year?"

"Dr. Goodman, I'm more than doubling it. I have just started that young boy of mine to college."—Chicago Tribune.

His Lesson.

"You know I refused you half a dozen times before we were married," said Mr. Meekton's wife.

"Yes," replied her husband. "I suspect that's what's kept me from ever wanting my own way again."—Washington Star.

A VERY ANCIENT TUNE.

It Is Also Probably the Most Popular One in the World.

Perhaps the most firmly established popular song in the world is the air familiar to Americans as "We Won't Go Home Till Morning." The origin of the tune is obscure, but Louis Elson believes that the music was composed as a love song in the tenth century or earlier by one of the troubadours, the wandering minstrels of southern France. Chateaubriand, the French writer, heard it sung by the Arabs, and suggested that it might have been carried to the orient by the French crusaders.

It was certainly sung by the French soldiers during the war in which the first Duke of Marlborough won his fame. It was the lullaby of the baby son of Marie Antoinette. It became one of the most popular songs of the French revolution. Napoleon whistled and sang it throughout his life. Beethoven used it as one of the themes of his "Battle Symphony."

It has been for more than a century one of the most popular street songs in Europe. And there is probably not a ten-year-old boy or girl in America who does not know the tune.

The French words, beginning "Marbrook s'en va-t-en grasse," were invented by some forgotten French soldier during the war of the Spanish succession. They describe the supposed death and funeral of the Duke of Marlborough, which death, in the words of Father Trout, "did not then take place, by some mistake," since "the subject of the pathetic elegy was at the time of its composition, both alive and kicking all before him."

The song had nearly died out in France when Marie Antoinette caught it up from the peasant nurse she had employed for her baby; thereupon it spread rapidly, as songs do in France. Beaumarchais introduced it into "The Marriage of Figaro," and it was used by the red republicans for incendiary purposes of their own.

Several sets of words have been sung to the tune in the course of its history and it has itself undergone some modifications. But its identity is clear through all the changes. Probably it is familiar to a greater number of people at the present time than any other tune in the world.—Youth's Companion.

WON THE JURY.

A Couple of Shrewd Querists and the Railroad Lost Its Case.

A number of years ago Benjamin F. Butler was a guest of friends in Brooklyn. During his visit he noted the rule of the street railway companies compelling conductors to register fares as soon as passengers entered the cars and before the fares were actually collected. Two or three years afterward he represented the plaintiff in a damage-suit for $15,000 in which a Brooklyn street railway company was the defendant. The principal witness for the company was the conductor of the car on which the accident occurred, and his testimony was so strong as to make things look bad for Butler's client. But Butler recalled the unusual rule he had remarked years before, and on cross examination he said:

"Your company requires you to ring up fares as soon as passengers enter the car, doesn't it?"
"Yes."
"Suppose a passenger boards your car and then finds he is on the wrong line. Do you state that fact to your superiors, and do they make allowance on your returns for that fare?"
"No, I lose the nickel."
"Do you mean to say the company won't take your word for 5 cents?"
"No, they won't."
"Yet," said the shrewd veteran, turning to the jury, "the company asks you to take this conductor's word for $15,000."
Butler's client received a verdict—Brooklyn Eagle.

Spanish Mutton.
Dog meat, we learn from the Frankfurter Zeitung, is largely sold in Germany, and more especially in Saxony, but rarely under its own name. Traders describe it as Spanish mutton, and their customers are less chary of asking for it.

Catfish in England is treated in the same euphemistic way. There was a time when this fish was never seen in the shops. Then some fishmonger genius invented the name of "rock salmon," and bestowed it upon the despised catfish, which now has an established place in the market.—London Chronicle.

The Man Fish.

Mathew Buchinger, mentioned in old English wonder books as the "man fish," was the most remarkable monstrosity of his time. He had neither hands, arms, feet nor legs. From his shoulders grew two unlike excrescences, and along his back there were several rows of scales. He had the lidless eyes characteristic of the fish species and a queer pucker'd mouth and no ears.
